

Mother Identifies Lost Toddler Found On Gary, Ind., Street

Even Policemen Sniffle
At Hospital Reunion

Gary, Ind., April 19. (P) — A woman who gave up her little boy because he reminded her of her first husband identified a lost child here last night as her son.

Gary police found a three-year-old boy toddling about the streets last week. His identity was a mystery until last night when Mrs. Robert Wiley of Blue Island, Ill., claimed him in a Gary hospital.

"Mommy, mommy," cried the tot as he ran to his mother.

"It was a plenty sad sight," said Detective Sgt. T. V. Curley. "Everybody was crying and even some of the cops were sniffing."

Mrs. Wiley said the boy's name is Richard F. Lair, Jr., a son by her first husband.

Sgt. Curley said the 24-year-old woman had signed a statement saying her present husband had taken the child to put him up for adoption last Thursday.

"I realized my boy reminded me so much of my first husband that I decided to give him up and place him in an adoption home," she said.

The woman told police she also has two other children, a one-and-a-half-year-old daughter out for adoption in a private home in New York state and a six-year-old son who lives with his father in Northville, N. Y.

Police are holding Mrs. Wiley without charge. Robert Gary Wiley, her husband, is a welder employed by the Pullman company in Chicago. Sgt. Curley said Chicago police had been asked to bring Wiley to Gary.

Hospital authorities said little Richard was suffering from malnutrition.

Baby Is Born After Shooting Of Mother

Dallas Woman Blind, But
Expected To Live

Dallas, Tex., April 19. (P) — A youthful Dallas woman who gave birth to a child after she had been shot in the head was in critical condition early today, hospital authorities said. The child, a daughter, was also reported in critical condition.

Earlier Mrs. Addie Hudson's physician said she had a good chance to recover, although she would probably be blind.

Mrs. Hudson, 19, gave birth to her daughter, a month prematurely, Sunday. She had been shot Friday.

City Policeman J. W. Gallaher said, "Mrs. Hudson and her husband lived in a room at the home of a relative. I was called there Friday. I found Mrs. Hudson on a bed, shot through the head. A .22 rifle was nearby."

Mrs. Hudson, who never lost consciousness, was rushed to the hospital.

The physician said the bullet entered the right eye, traveled through the brain and emerged in front of the left ear.

Preparations were made for a caesarean birth delivery, but the child was delivered normally.

Gallaher said Lester L. Hudson, 21, a stove repairman who is husband of the woman, was at work when his wife was shot. Hudson has been at her bedside since the shooting.

Russians Operating Little Atom City, Berlin Paper Says

Berlin, April 19. (P) — The British-licensed newspaper Mittags Echo claimed today the Russians are operating a "miniature atom city" near suburban Potsdam.

The newspaper said the Russians had been conducting atomic research in a closely-guarded "little city" there with a staff of German scientists since 1947. The report said the work was solely research and not production.

Woman And Sons Admit 2 Slayings Of Lonely Hearts

Dover, Del., April 19. (P) — A stocky, 43-year-old mother of four confessed today she plotted the shotgun slaying of two elderly "lonely hearts club" members and directed her three sons in burning the bodies and throwing the remains on a city dump.

Through five days of police grilling, Mrs. Inez Brennan had steadfastly denied any knowledge of the slayings of Wade N. Woodruff, 70, Bedford, Va., and Hugo Schultz, 66, Epsom, N. H. Her son Robert, 15, had admitted he shot Woodruff and said his mother killed Schultz.

Robert's half-brother, Raymond, 23, corroborated that story.

Their mother broke down as police played and replayed for her recordings of her sons' statements. Weeping and sobbing she faintly said six times. Finally she cried to Col. Herbert Barnes,

Kidnap Hoax Bared At Beverly Hills

Mother Admits Trick To Hide Racing Losses

Beverly Hills, Calif., April 19. (P) — Police Chief C. H. Anderson said today no criminal charges are planned in a kidnap hoax involving a five-year-old boy and some $30,000 of his mother's racetrack betting losses.

Anderson said the boy's pretty mother, Mrs. Joe Goodman, 32, admitted staging the kidnapping to hide the betting losses from her husband.

Mrs. Goodman reported last week that her boy, Joey, had been abducted last Monday and was ransomed a few hours later for $33,000.

Anderson said police felt all along it was a hoax, chiefly because when the youngster was found he had an envelope containing $1,000 in his hand.

However, the chief said, it was believed at first that the husband and father, Goodman, 40, former Norfolk, Va., boxer, staged the hoax to avoid paying off gambling debts.

Goodman was booked on a grand theft charge during the investigation. The charge has been dismissed.

Sky Dancers Stunt 168 Feet Up Over Street In Chicago

Chicago, April 19. (P) — A brother and sister circus dance team staged a few routines from their act 168 feet above the pavement of Michigan Avenue yesterday.

Benny Fox hoisted his sister, Betty, to his shoulders and did a dance on an 18-inch wooden pedestal at the end of a wooden plank. The plank extended over eight feet from a 13th floor window in the Congress hotel.

Benny, 46, and Betty, 25, billed as the "Sky Dancers," are in Chicago for the opening of the Barnes Brothers' circus on Friday. For their regular act, they climb a 125 foot steel pole and perform on a tiny pedestal.

Repeal Of Michigan Secret Primary Law Up Again In Lansing

Lansing, April 19. (P) — The House planned another stab this week at abolishing Michigan's secret primary.

The bill reappeared from the elections committee last night, the committee had attached a new provision forbidding the keeping of a record of the party ballot voters ask for.

This point threatened to be a stumbling block when the measure was up in the House some weeks ago. It was sent back to committee for the amendment.

The measure would return to the primary election system in which voters would be required to ask for the ballot of only one party. The law now provides for a two-party ballot, concealing the voter's choice.

Amplifiers Quit
Last night the House passed a measure to permit townships to contribute to the support of non-profit hospitals. Defeated was a measure which would have permitted the governing bodies of Flint, Saginaw, Dearborn and Highland Park to set fees of process servers.

Struggling with the collapse of its public address system last night, the House deferred action on all controversial bills. Thus measures proposing to increase gasoline and commercial weight taxes were not discussed. They were on the calendar for today.

Advanced for votes today with little debate were bills to:

Require the Huron - Clinton metropolitan authority to pay taxes to local units amounting to 50 per cent of the five-year average tax before its land was acquired.

Declare the right of employees to four hours' leave of absence on election days for voting.

Establish veterans' preference in layoffs in public employment.

Permit probate courts to charge $50 for their services in adoptions.

Extend deadline for payment of sales taxes by retailers from the 15th to the 20th of the month.

Raise the educational requirements for barbers' licenses and increase barber license and inspection fees.

The Senate defeated a move to legalize the sale of so-called "chocolate drinks" with low but-terfat content. At the same time it beat down a move to tighten butter standards by requiring sour cream shipped for butter making to be kept at less than 60 degrees temperature.

State Going Broke, Gov. Williams Says

Near-Bankruptcy Blamed
On Taxation System

Detroit, April 19. (P) — Michigan is "struggling along in imminent danger of state bankruptcy," according to Gov. Williams.

The reason, he told Detroit's Economic club yesterday, is that "we have insisted on trying to get revenues mainly out of the consumers' pockets."

In a biting attack on the Republican-controlled legislature, the Democratic chief executive declared:

"Our revenues today are running more than $21,000,000 less than expenses. In less than a year, the state will be broke."

"Meanwhile, the legislature is talking about a measly tax on used cars."

Gov. Williams added that Michigan is "10 years behind the times" on social legislation.

"We are like a bunch of crows flapping over the carcass of the past," the governor said, "when we ought to be eagles soaring to meet new horizons."

"If I can ever get some of these things out of my hair," he said, "I would like to see Michigan lead in developing the St. Lawrence seaway."

Wreck On Santa Fe Piles Up 53 Cars

San Bernardino, Calif., April 19. (P) — Two work trains are clearing the wreckage today of 53 freight cars and a caboose derailed in Cajon Pass in the worst pileup in Santa Fe history. One crewman suffered minor injuries.

The wreck occurred yesterday as an 80-car westbound freight train started down the grade. The diesel locomotive and 27 cars passed the derailment point safely. The rest of the train leaped the curve and rolled 35 feet into a narrow canyon.

Railroad officials tentatively placed the loss at $300,000. Cause of the derailment has not been determined.

The wreck ripped up 2,800 feet of track.

Lansing Graft Case Back After 5 Years

Supreme Court To Hear
Charges May 19

Lansing, April 19. (P) — The first and biggest of the sensational legislative graft cases uncovered by the Carr-Sigler grand jury will go before the state supreme court May 19, more than five years since it started.

This was the case which started the state with official charges that legislators and lobbyists had bought and sold votes to influence the results of legislation.

It was also the case in which the bizarre Charles F. Hemans, the state's star witness who was to become a by-word in subsequent cases, first made his disclosures of paying bribes in his hotel room bath, and of winning and dining lawmakers to help his clients.

The grand jury pointed the finger at five finance company officials and 21 legislators, but guilty pleas, acquittals, deaths and similar screenings cut the list to 19 involved and some of them already have served sentences for other bribe offenses and are only shadowy figures in the case as it reaches the state's highest court.

Little Boys Killed With Souvenir Gun

Scranton, Pa., April 19. (P) — A 10-year-old boy accidentally shot his younger brother — and then fired one shot into his own head, Dr. P. E. Kubasko, county coroner, said.

The victims of the double tragedy yesterday were Kenneth Kaye, 10, and Stephen, 5, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kaye.

The two died in Scranton State hospital shortly after they were found in their home, each with a bullet in the head.

A souvenir Belgian semi-automatic pistol owned by their father was found beside Kenneth.

Aged Beaver Island Light Keeper Ill; Flown To Hospital

Beaver Island, (P) — An 82-year-old retired lighthouse keeper, Dominic Gallagher, was flown to Marine hospital in Chicago from here Monday on a Coast Guard flying boat. He was seriously ill, and had been stationed on Beaver Island for 35 years.

He was flown to the International Len- in Institute in Moscow in an effort to overcome his opposition to using Negroes as tools for an American revolution.

Testifying for the government about training in Moscow, Nowell mentioned three of the eleven top Communist leaders on trial in federal court on charges of conspiracy to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Those he named were Jack Stachel, Irving Potash and Gus Hall.

The 44-year-old witness said that when he argued in party powwows against the Negro nation dream, Stachel told him he needed more training in revolutionary theory, and arranged for his education at the Lenin school.

Truman's Housing Bill Under Fire; Called Too Costly

Washington, April 19. (P) — The administration's housing bill was up for another round of debate in the Senate today.

The program calls for 810,000 units in six years, slum clearance, research to cut building costs, and a farm home project.

Opponents who claim the program is too costly hope to riddle it with amendments. But Senator Flanders (R-Vt.) said he believed the measure would be approved "without any radical changes."

A vote is possible later this week, although Flanders said "a great deal of debate" may develop around an amendment by Senators Bricker (R-Ohio) and Cain (R-Wash.).

The Bricker-Cain proposal would ban discrimination on the basis of color, creed or race in the renting of public housing units.

The House is taking a 10-day Easter holiday and is idle. But the Senate, far behind in its legislative program because of a long filibuster and lengthy debate on foreign aid, is meeting daily.

On the matter of taxes in general, the president has asked for an increase of $4,000,000,000 to take care of a predicted deficit this year.

Those against such a tax hike want to avoid the deficit by spending less. But today Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate finance committee and himself an opponent of higher taxes, said glumly:

"There is no evidence at this time that Congress is willing to cut down spending."

Another one of the president's appointments was running into

Irish Face Future With Light Hearts

Six Counties Of Ulster
Remain No. 1 Problem

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON
Dublin, Ireland, April 19. (P) — The Irish, fully free of British rule at last, face the future with a light heart, a world full of friends and money in the bank.

Many problems confront them, but they face these unafraid. They closed the books yesterday on 780 years of rule by a foreign power, and they feel the future will be what they make it. They intend to make it a good one. Individually the people are poor, but they have every hope they won't stay that way.

They still look darkly at six counties of Ulster which have chosen to stay in the British commonwealth. The Irish call this their No. 1 problem—to draw those counties into the free republic of Ireland. President Sean T. O'Kelly says he hopes to see that goal reached within a generation.

But in Ulster, the press and politicians called suggestions of federalization within the republic "unthinkable." W. B. Topping, chief government whip in the Northern Ireland parliament, said an "unbridgeable" gulf separates them.

Economically, free Ireland is sound. Her main business is agriculture, and with British shopping for far more beef and other produce than the Irish can produce, the farmer has an assured market.

Marshall plan dollars are available to this new republic along the way.

Uniforms Are Hated By German Youths; Old Ideals Totter

Detroit, April 19. (P) — Visiting German youth leaders said today that uniforms are so hated in Germany now that even Boy Scouts refuse to wear them.

The four Germans arrived here today as the vanguard of a larger group making a two-month study of American training and youth programs.

Heinz H. Frick, head of the youth hours at the Amerika-Haus, Berlin, said many German youths are "so disillusioned they don't believe in anything."

"They are often afraid to belong to anything," he said. "They have seen the oldtime structure of their ideals totter, and it is hard to build another structure based on a new outlook."

Communist Forces Train Guns Ready To Cross Yangtze

Despair Grips Nanking;
Peace Hopes Faint

By the Associated Press
Chinese armies levelled their guns at each other across the Yangtze river today, awaiting the signal to start civil war blazing again.

The Communist deadline for the government to surrender is up tomorrow. The shooting is expected immediately after it expires.

North of the river 1,000,000 seasoned Red troops were ready to start shooting. South of the river 500,000 Nationalist troops crouched before the impending blow.

Despair gripped Nanking. Government officials got ready to flee. They met, however, to prepare some sort of reply to the Reds, pinning faint hope on a plea for more time.

Exact nature of the Communist surrender demands remained secret, but Nationalists admitted that they call for outright capitulation.

The government of acting president Li Tsung-jen appeared ready to concede almost anything except that the Communist forces be permitted to establish bridgeheads south of the Yangtze.

Economists in Shanghai saw peace as the only way to save Nationalist China from complete collapse.

Inflation is running wild. The government's gold yuan currency grows more worthless by the day. Printing presses run round the clock but they still can't keep the country in money.

Senate Takes Off For Tiger Opener; House Disapproves

Lansing, April 19. (P) — Senators met early today so they could get away for the Tiger opening game in Detroit today, but the House scowled across the Capitol in disapproval.

When it was proposed that the House meet in the morning and travel to Detroit free in Greyhound buses, House leaders landed on the proposal with both feet.

House majority floor leader Robert M. Montgomery (R-Lansing) was jokingly appointed a committee of one to inform the Senate that the House "would play ball in Lansing and let the Tigers play ball in Detroit."

The House calendar is jammed with a flood of bills being sent to the floor by committees.

New York, April 19. (P) — Dr. Stephen S. Wise was reported today to be "weakening and losing ground" at Lenox Hill hospital.

Endurance Fliers Spurred To Record By Sick Children

Midway City, Calif., April 19 (AP)—Tow-headed 10-year-old Dickie Riedel smiled from his sickbed and said shyly: "I feel better already."

The youngster had reason to be happy. When Dick Riedel, his father, and Bill Barris took off from Fullerton airport near here March 15 to set a new endurance flying record, they were gambling everything they had. They bettered the old record of 727 hours last Thursday and they're still aloft in hopes of staying up 1008 hours.

But their gamble now is starting to pay off financially and little Dickie, crippled with arthritis, may be able to walk again.

Barris and Riedel each have two children. Barris' 2-year-old girl, Patty, suffers from acute asthma, and his son, Steven, 15 months, has eye trouble.

Doctor bills come high. That was why the two pilots started their endurance flight—in the hope that someone would sponsor their venture once they broke the record.

Yesterday they received a check for $5,000 from R. S. MacMillan, president of the petroleum corporation which donated the gasoline for their plane.

Forest Service Spring Planting Starts Monday

The planting of 1,250,000 three-year-old Norway pine seedlings and 500,000 two-year-old jack-pine seedlings will get underway in the Hiawatha and Marquette

National forests Monday, Ray W. Knudson, staff assistant of the U. S. Forest service here, reports.

The forest service will plant 600,000 of the 1,250,000 Norway pine seedlings in the Manistique ranger district, and all the jack-pine will be planted in the Raco district, Knudson said. The remainder of the Norway pine will be planted in the Raco, Rapid River, Manistique, Munising and Moran districts.

Approximately 100 men will be engaged in the forest service's 1949 spring planting program. Norway pine will be planted by hand and jackpine by machine and will be completed the last week in May. The fall planting program will start in September.

It is estimated that about 4,000,000 seedlings will be planted by the forest service in Upper Michigan National forest this year.

Last year's total was 5,139,000—3,365,000 Norway pine and 1,774,000 jackpine—but this year's total will be considerably less because of a lack of funds, it was pointed out. Plenty of stock is available, however. Seedlings are regularly obtained from the forest service nurseries at Watersmeet, Rhineland and Wellston.

The 1948 total was the highest since the war.

NORSE EXPERTS COMING TO U. P.

Will Observe American Forestry Methods

Two forestry experts from Norway will visit the Hiawatha and Marquette national forests in the Upper Peninsula from May 2 to 6 as a part of a three-months' study of American methods and techniques.

The Europeans have been brought to the United States under the Economic Co-operation Administration's technical assistance program. They will make visits to forestry experimental stations, forest products factories, botanical laboratories and similar installations around the country.

The Norwegian experts are Prof. Elias Mork of the forestry experimental station at Aas, and Prof. Franz Germeten of the Steinkjer forestry school.

Mork, known internationally for his treatises on forestry, will concentrate his studies on U. S. botanical and wood technology. He and Germeten are especially interested in American planting methods, artificial reforestation, forest genetics and nurseries. Their studies will help set up an educational program for forestry students in Norway.

They will visit the Escanaba, Rapid River, Munising, Manistique and Raco areas. At Raco, they will observe the operations of tree planting machines.

BEGIN CANCER FUND CAMPAIGN

House-To-House Canvass Planned In Escanaba

Solicitors for the Delta County Cancer Society's "fight cancer" fund this week will begin a house-to-house canvass of the residential area in Escanaba. It was announced today by Clem Skopp, Escanaba city chairman for the fund-raising campaign.

Chairman Skopp emphasized that no solicitation will be made at the places of employment in the city. All persons will be contacted at their homes, and contributions to the "fight cancer" fund can be made when the solicitors call there.

The quota for the Delta county unit of the American Cancer Society is $3,507. Of each $1 contributed, 25 cents will go to the American Cancer Society for research; 15 cents is used by the national headquarters for its broad program of lay and medical education, for the organization of the professional and volunteer service, and administrative guidance of the Society's work on a national scale; and 60 cents of the dollar is retained by the Michigan division for use in this state.

"By contributing to the American Cancer Society our people are helping build one of the broadest research programs ever launched against a threat to mankind," Chairman Skopp pointed out.

Captains and workers have been appointed for the different blocks in Escanaba. The zone leaders are as follows:

Mesdames Harry Reynolds, E. J. Noon, G. C. Bartley, Hans Hansen, George Young, Tom Beaton, Gabriel Nilson, A. M. Gilbert, Ruth McClellan, F. W. Schmidt, Charles Byrns, J. A. Natilo, John Anthony, Oliver Lund, William McCarthy, Mel Trams, and the Rev. Blakeley Grant, and members of Bet Sigma Phi.

11th District Votes On Public Issues

APPROXIMATELY 305 residents of the 11th congressional district have replied to Rep. Potter's questionnaire on leading issues of the present session. The number, of course, represents an extremely small percentage of the number of voters in the district but the results of the questionnaire are highly interesting, nonetheless. The tabulations do provide a basis for determining how the people in this area are thinking in regard to many of the important national issues.

Rep. Potter listed 10 specific issues in his questionnaires. Here are the results:

1. Do you favor national compulsory health insurance? Yes 74, No. 240. The results on this issue certainly leave little room for doubt that the people in this area, at least, are much opposed to nationalization of the medical profession and the creation of a gigantic bureaucracy.

2. Do you favor legislation that would prohibit the sale of colored oleomargarine in interstate commerce? Yes 118, No. 190. Consumers outvoted farmers on this issue, which has already been considered by the house of representatives. The house voted against restrictions and the measure now is before the senate.

3. Do you believe the Taft-Hartley act should: Remain as is, 96. Be amended, 54. Be repealed, 54. Be strengthened, 106. The results of this poll may prove surprising to labor leaders. The sentiment for the principles of the T-H act is preponderant. Only one-sixth of those voting on the issue favor repeal, which is being urged by President Truman.

4. Do you favor legislation that will increase Social Security benefits and broaden the coverage? Yes 190, No 121. It is generally recognized that social security benefit payments are too low in the face of present day living costs. Higher payments, of course, will also mean heavier social-security deductions.

5. Do you believe we should remain firm in our dealings with Russia? Yes 290, No 15. The tremendous "yes" vote on this issue speaks for itself. Communist influences are virtually non-existent in the 11th district.

6. Do you favor an increase of the minimum wage from its present 40c an hour? 1. Remain as is, 62. 2. 65 cents, 102. 3. 75 cents, 101. 4. $1.00, 31. The poll shows conclusively that 11th district sentiment decidedly favors an increase in minimum wage.

7. Do you believe in federal aid to education? Yes 158, No 142. Considerable explanation still remains on this controversial issue, as evidenced by the division of public opinion.

8. Do you favor the removal of wartime imposed excise taxes? Yes 204, No 85. The cry for tax relief is growing in volume.

9. Do you believe the federal government should outlaw the Communist party? Yes 245, No 62. Eleventh district residents definitely recognize Communists as traitors, not simply exponents of another political philosophy entitled to protection under the U. S. constitution.

10. Do you believe the federal government should enact Civil Rights legislation? Yes 139, No 134. The results of the voting on this issue are particularly surprising, reflecting the influence of the South on the civil rights question.

Political Scientists Have Broad Program

A REVOLUTIONARY program which could upset some of our most cherished American traditions is reported by Peter Edson in his Washington column. It seems that the American Political Science association wants to inject a little science into the workings of our political parties.

That is an over-simplified statement of a complicated project. Even so, it can be seen that the A. P. S. A.'s idea is of a magnitude which makes the Hoover Commission's recommendations look like routine spring housecleaning.

Any attempt to apply political science to party politics will take the scientists into dangerous territory. They will have to contend with pressure and patronage, seniority and sectionalism, tradition and folklore. They will venture into fields where a pair of red suspenders or a hillbilly band often means more to the voters than the issues at stake. They will have to travel the peaks of public enthusiasm and the valleys of public apathy. They will have to convince the people as well as the politicians that political responsibility is a day-in-day-out task and not an excuse for speeches and fireworks one year in four.

It promises to be a rough journey. We wish the scientists well with their idea which, as Mr. Edson explains, "is to make party platforms mean what they say, and to create more discipline within party organizations, so that their political promises will be carried out."

The scientists would like to see the party policy makers get together more often and with representation from the local to the national government levels. They would also like to see party platforms drafted every two years instead of every four. They are considering the merits of having each party form a National Policy Council to do most of the job that the present National Policy Committees are supposed to do and often don't.

These are not all the suggestions that the political scientists are playing around with, but they indicate the direction of their thought. The tough job of putting this thought into action would be a matter of persuasion rather than of legislation. But since the A. P. S. A. is the outfit which largely initiated the congressional reorganization of 1946, it should not be written off as supporting a hopeless cause.

It is certain that this A. P. S. A. idea will have to have a lot of public support if it is to get beyond the talking stage. Otherwise the professional politicians would be likely to give it a condescending smile and forget it. The smart political party ought to adopt some of the scientists' recommendations voluntarily and pile up a record of efficiency and integrity. It then should be able to run away from the opposition and hide.

But political parties, smart and otherwise, are packed with officials who are resistant to change. As long as the public doesn't complain they are not likely to initiate radical reforms. This goes for winning and losing parties alike, who could both do with a general overhaul.

The public isn't going to complain much until it is roused from its general attitude of cynical indulgence toward politicians and parties. Too many of us expect the quadrennial platform to be forgotten. We expect hatchets to be buried for the sake of "unity" at election time, the party divisions to appear soon afterward. We expect city and county bosses to run local politics pretty much as they please. We sneer, but we accept such things as a matter of course.

This is an old story, but it is still true. We may be thankful for the contrast of the political scientists' zeal, which deserves a helping hand.

Russia May Lift Berlin Blockade

BITS OF EVIDENCE from behind the iron curtain indicate that all is not well in Soviet occupied eastern Germany and that pressures are being applied to the Russians for lifting of the Berlin blockade.

After the Russians imposed the transportation blockade of Berlin, the western powers replied with a counter-blockade on trade with the eastern zone. The result has been a sharp reduction in output from eastern industries because the east zone is reliant to a considerable degree upon products of west Germany, such as iron and steel and coal, as well as industrial machinery. Moreover, the eastern German railroads are faced with bankruptcy unless interzonal transport is resumed before long.

The Russians cannot hope to gain anything further by continuing the blockade. The remarkable performance of the allied air lift has proved that the allied zones can be supplied entirely by air, if necessary, and were, in fact, supplied throughout the winter by air. The blockade only has accomplished a further split in relations between the east and the west, an intensification of the cold war.

No negotiations on any of the east-west problems will be resumed by the allies until Russia lifts the blockade. There are growing indications that Russia may be inclined to do so before long.

Hasn't Been Around Lately

MOSCOW SAYS that a proposed three-country expedition to seek the ruins of Noah's Ark on Mt. Ararat, near the Soviet border, is simply another excuse for spying on Russian territory.

Could be the expedition is looking for that dove of hope which came around to inform Noah that the storm was over.

CHILDREN IN WAR AND PEACE (Green Bay Press-Gazette)

Impatiently readers by the thousands turned away from news of the general assembly of the United Nations to seek with palpating heart any word concerning Kathy, the three-year-old of smiling face and expectant blue eyes, who had toddled into a casing and slid a hundred feet into the bowels of the earth.

While thousands prayed and scores worked at feverish pitch to save the little child, virtually every part of the civilized world held its breath, hoping against hope that the divine spark of existence might not be snuffed out of her.

Yet at Nagasaki and Hiroshima, at Dresden and Leipzig, we killed thousands of little Kathys, convinced that they must be sacrificed on the bloody altar of necessity. For necessity knows no law, and hasn't even a breath of pity about it. Those German and Japanese children had to die, not that they were guilty of any wrongdoing but because their governments had been taken over by ravaging beasts who started the work of indiscriminate slaughter and were inheriting the whirlwind.

Let those who urge or wage war or who hold opinions that it is a natural condition of affairs that benefit the human race compare the attitude of mankind toward little Kathy recently and the attitude of the same people toward the children of their enemies when their eyes and their brains were bloodshot with fury, and decide for themselves which is the natural and the Christian attitude and which belongs to the beasts of the jungle.

New And Fair Deals Studied

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—The observance of the fourth anniversary of President Truman's accession to the highest office in the land marks a kind of historical dividing line. While the Fair Deal of the Truman administration grew out of the New Deal of the Roosevelt era, it can now be considered on its own merits or demerits.

The personnel has almost entirely changed. With the resignation of James Forrestal as secretary of defense, the last member of the Roosevelt cabinet stepped down. And Forrestal was a wartime rather than a New Deal participant.

Here in Washington are many of the figures out of the New Deal. Some are in retirement, others are busy making money in law offices. They are on the outside looking in, where once they wielded great power and influence.

TWO DEALS COMPARED

I asked several of these retired New Dealers to talk about the Fair Deal. How does it look from the outside? How do the two Deals compare?

Speaking frankly and not for quotation, they provided an interesting analysis. Part of their criticism may perhaps be put down to the natural jealousy and resentment of the king's henchman who is now outside the walls of the palace where once he helped to run the state.

The chief criticism from the New Dealers is on two counts. First, they say that Truman promises too much. While this criticism may draw cynical laughter from the Roosevelt-haters (a most persistent and enduring tribe), the New Dealers go to document their point.

Truman, they say, promises everyone everything. That is a dangerous thing to do, particularly when the gulf between promise and performance grows ever wider.

You have to concentrate your promises, say the ex-New Dealers. Then at fairly frequent intervals you have to prove that you can deliver.

Failing to deliver, Truman is drawing on the bank of the good will created by FDR. He exploits the social-economic relations that Roosevelt established through long and skillful education of the electorate in repeated campaigns. But he adds little or nothing to this process of education.

RADICAL SOLUTIONS FEARED
The real danger, as those outside looking in see it, is failure. Failure of the Fair Deal will discredit the whole Roosevelt concept of a modified capitalism which, with government regulation and some government competition such as TVA, would work to produce the greatest good for the greatest number. If the moderate reformism of the New Deal and the Fair Deal is discredited, then radical solutions will be a threat from both the extreme left and the extreme right.

The second major criticism has to do, as the ex-New Dealers see it, with the principal reason for the faltering and fumbling now jeopardizing the Truman program. That is a lack of any general headquarters to direct the whole operation.

Without a GHQ, a lot of things never get done or they are done ineptly and often with someone's special self-interest in view. There is no one to equate the overall situation for the president.

What the critics have in mind, of course, is the GHQ directed in the palmy days of the New Deal by Thomas G. Corcoran. When President Roosevelt left his office in the late afternoon, he left behind a stack of assignments for Tommy the Cork to execute during the night. When he came back to his desk in the morning, those tasks had been performed.

In the first Roosevelt term Corcoran received perhaps more abuse than any of the New Dealers immediately around the president. That may have come as a well-earned tribute to his effectiveness as an operator for the White House. Shutting behind the president's office and the congress, Corcoran got things done.

The former New Dealers believe there is no substitute for that kind of operation. It was often hardboiled to the point of ruthlessness. But without it the gulf between executive and congress—and correspondingly between promise and performance—might have been even wider than it was.

This, as I say, may be a jaundiced point of view. But it is the conviction of men who exercised authority under a president who inspired them to believe that a liberal middle course was the answer for America.

tionaries, some of which are more than a century old. But I can reconstruct the word for you.

The word ark means literally "a chest or box for keeping things safe," from the Latin area, "a chest; a money coffer." The ark of testimony, or covenant, described in Exodus, was an elaborate chest of shittim wood, overlaid with gold.

Now the word right means "a worker, an artificer," as in wheelwright, shipwright, millwright, playwright, etc. An arkwright, then, is an expert fashioner of chests. Thanks for finding such a rare and interesting word.

Phoenix: On one of his morning programs Arthur Godfrey discussed you by name, and said: "The Russians have a word for guys like Colby—jerkiski." Doesn't that make you mad?—Mrs. L. T.

A. On the contrary, I congratulate him on adding a new word to the American vocabulary. Here it is readers; clip it and paste it in your dictionaries:

JERKISKI: Any radio listener who catches The Godfrey mispronouncing words.

League City: In various magazines and newspapers, and on the radio, I have noticed the word "snide." From its use I would say that it means "sneering" or "derisive." Is this a new word?—Mrs. M. N.

A. Snide is listed by Webster's New International as slang, meaning "spurious; deceptively inferior; tricky; mean; base." The word is of unknown origin.

ON CANVAS—If you were an artist and were told to paint something representative of the State of Michigan, what would you choose as a representative subject?

This must have been a problem for the ten artists commissioned by J. L. Hudson Company of Detroit to do a series of pictures portraying "to the people of Michigan the assets of their great state, its unique advantages, its varied pattern of living."

The people of this area of the Upper Peninsula will have an opportunity to see how well the artists succeeded when the "Michigan on Canvas" exhibit of 100 paintings will be displayed to the public April 21-28 in the Junior high school in Escanaba.

It is an exhibit neither you nor your family and friends will want to miss—if for no other reason than to view the Michigan scene as presented in oil and watercolor by ten of the nation's leading artists.

MICHIGAN UNITY—The Upper Peninsula is well represented in the collection of 100 paintings, for two artists, Joe Jones and Adolf Dehm, did 27 Upper Peninsula scenes for the exhibition.

We recall, and this time without thought of criticism, the J. L. Hudson company advertisements in Detroit newspapers in which Michigan was depicted as a state without an Upper Peninsula. That was several years ago. Since then the sponsors of the "Michigan on Canvas" project have shown they recognize Michigan as a unified whole, north and south, east and west. And through the work of the ten artists, already viewed by over a hundred thousand people, they are promoting a worthwhile unity of interest among Michigan people.

KNOWING ART — Michigan's farms, its lumbering, fishing, tourist business, auto industry, mining and lake shipping are all represented in the "Michigan on Canvas" exhibit. You will find a cross-section of the state in those 100 paintings—although you may not be so coldly analytical as to look for it.

More than anything, you will be entertained by the glowing colors, the originality and versatility of the artists, and the variety of Michigan scenes.

It will not be necessary to take with you to the exhibit a "guidebook to great paintings, or art for the amateur." For none of the pictures are "arty" in the sense of pseudo-impressionism or any other of the "schools" of painting.

What you will find is an honest and forthright attempt to depict the many facets of a great state by ten men and women who know how to paint. The wide variety in the paintings come from ten different styles of execution, giving a refreshing change of pace to the series as a whole.

THE ENJOYMENT—"Michigan on canvas" should be viewed as a family affair, for the children—as well as papa, mama, and the grandparents—will enjoy it.

In fact the enjoyment of paintings is the one requisite for attendance at an art exhibit, whether it be to enjoy the store the pictures tell, or to admire the ability of the artist. And the familiarity

INTO THE PAST

Ten Years Ago

Escanaba—Mrs. Charles E. Lewis, first delegate, and Mrs. Sarah French, second delegate, are leaving today for Detroit to attend the annual convention of the Michigan P. E. O. Sisterhood. Escanaba—Henry L. Rose and Peter N. Logan are leaving today for Chicago to attend a convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

Manistique—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson have left for an extended visit in Los Angeles. Escanaba—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martinson were guests of honor at a surprise party given April 14 in honor of their silver wedding anniversary.

Gladstone—Isaac N. Bushong and J. Paul Bushong left yesterday for Portland, Ore., where they will visit for a month. Escanaba—Otis D. Bowers of Escanaba is a member of the 1929 graduating class of Michigan college of Mining and Technology and will receive his degree at exercises May 9.

Our theme is the revival of the greatness of Britain and the British empire. We are told we must not use the word empire. It is naughty. I know of no reason why any of us—liberal, conservative or socialist—should be ashamed of the word after the parts we all played in the late war. —Winston Churchill.

We are in the process of getting ourselves a peacetime adjustment. The thing that is really scaring us is that we haven't had the depression that we have been waiting for. We feel it is long overdue.—A. D. H. Kaplan, Brookings Institution economist.

of many scenes will add to your pleasure.

VARIETY—In the exhibition of Michigan paintings you will find wide variety of place as well as of subject and style.

One production and one handling from mine to smelter, pastoral Upper Peninsula farm scenes, a lonely farm in cutover lands near Seney, the Coast Guard cutter "Mackinaw" breaking ice, Au Train falls near Munising, the fishing village of Epoufette near St. Ignace, the famous ship locks at Sault Ste. Marie, the north woods, vacationers in parks, fishing on swift-running streams—all these and more comprise the collection that began with the work of the artists more than two years ago.

There is variety, there is action, beauty and color.

And there is one error in the first edition of the "Michigan on canvas" catalog—corrected before the catalog went into second printing. A picture of the village of Baraga was below it the notation that Father Baraga established a Methodist mission in the community. It was a Catholic mission, not Methodist.

AND SINCERITY—The catalog of "Michigan on Canvas" gives some indication of the scope of the coming exhibit, and it also reveals the sincerity with which the whole project was approached and executed.

Where the exhibit has been shown it has been received enthusiastically. In Detroit thousands have admired the paintings. In Alpena it drew 8,300 persons from a sparsely populated area. Here in Escanaba this week and next "Michigan on Canvas" will be visited by an estimated 20,000 to 30,000 people. It is yours for seeing and enjoying, without cost.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—One factor which contributes to disastrous floods in the Far West is overgrazing of national forests and public lands by big cattle and sheep ranchers. Regarding this, the present 81st congress has now proved itself just as bad as the much-maligned Republican 80th congress.

Last year the U. S. Forest Service was sharply criticized by a house public lands subcommittee, headed by G. O. P. Congressman Frank Barrett of Wyoming, for being too strict on the big cattle and sheepmen and their grazing privileges. The forest service replied that 50 per cent of public range lands were faced with erosion, due to overgrazing, and the range had to be policed carefully. Otherwise cattlemen grazed too many head per acre on land that belonged not to them but to all the taxpayers.

Barrett vigorously dissented. After a series of public hearings, he and nine public lands colleagues sent a protest to former Agriculture Secretary Clinton Anderson, demanding the limitation of grazing be banned for three years. Anderson wouldn't hear of it and the forest service continued its farsighted policy of curtailing overgrazing.

This year the forest service is under congressional fire from the Democrats for the opposite reason—not cracking down hard enough on overgrazing.

However, one essential to the prevention of overgrazing is enough rangers to police the national forests. Cattlemen can go for months with twice the allotted number of head per acre on the range, unless enough forest rangers are on hand to police them. And without gathering to question the forest service on this phase of its work, the house appropriations committee arbitrarily clipped its funds for forest rangers by $1,518,500, charging:

"The forest service has full authority to fix the number of grazing permits. . . But in many cases has not exercised it to the point necessary to prevent depredation."

Note—If this committee cut is approved by congress, the $1,518,500 slash will cost the taxpayers tens of millions in erosion losses in future years.

CATALOGUE IS BEST SELLER

The American embassies in Hungary, Roumania and Bulgaria have cabled the state department for large shipments of a book that may become a best seller behind the iron curtain—the Sears, Roebuck catalogue.

In Prague, Czechoslovakia, a crowd two blocks long formed outside the American informational library the other day to look at pictures of goods you could buy in America. Hundreds tried to place orders for these goods, before the Czech security police broke up the crowd.

American embassies in other iron curtain countries now want more mail order catalogues to show what capitalism means compared with Communism.

The incident is important for two reasons: 1. It shows how eager the people of iron curtain countries are to do business with the United States; 2. It shows how the state department has neglected some of the simplest devices to sell American capitalism in countries where it counts most.

For instance, the idea of distributing Sears, Roebuck catalogues behind the iron curtain was first proposed by Morris Ernst, New York attorney, to President Roosevelt personally. That was in 1944. The idea has been repeated from time to time in this column.

However, nothing was done—even in such countries as Czechoslovakia where communication is easy—until last month.

Meanwhile, congress is becoming more and more concerned about the huge cost of both financing and rearming Western Europe against Russia. More and more congressmen are arguing that this will be an endless drain on the American pocketbook, and have come around to the idea that we must break through the iron curtain and undercut the Kremlin with people-to-people friendship.

Getting the Russian people acquainted with the American people is going to be the only long-term insurance against war.

MERCY TRAIN STEAMS ON

Exhibits of the French "Merci Train" gifts are still attracting tremendous crowds from coast-to-coast extending even to Honolulu, where the gifts went on display April 1. At Louisville, Ky., the J. B. Speed Art Museum had to hire additional help to handle the throngs of people. In the capitol building at Madison, Wis., crowds moved three and four abreast past the gifts, and the waiting line was so long many people had to return the next day.

Wisconsin is sending its gifts by trailer to as many communities as request the exhibit, and anticipate it will take a year to cover the state. Madison, Wis., schools, the University of Wisconsin, and the Madison Business and Professional Women's clubs have taken on the mammoth task of acknowledging each French gift personally. Wisconsin has the reputation of being a German-American state but it believes in people-to-people friendship.

Other states are doing the same. In Arkansas Gov. Sid McMath has already sent out more than 500 "thank-you" notes to every French mayor and individual contributing to the Arkansas car of the "Merci Train." Idaho students of French will acknowledge the gifts for their state.

Washington state staged its main exhibit in Seattle, with thousands of people hearing special lectures explaining the gifts. Smaller exhibitions followed in Spokane and other Washington cities, and the University of Washington has been given a selection of the gifts which it will use as a traveling exhibit year after year.

The magnificent collection of forty-nine dolls depicting the progress of French dressmaking from 1706 to 1906 has found its way to the Brooklyn Museum where it will augment a display of costumes from every period of history and every nation in the world.

Two Are Arrested For Illegal Nets

Menominee, Mich.—Commercial smelt fishing production in Michigan waters on lower Green Bay hit a stumbling block during the weekend when Michigan conservation officers raided pound nets with alleged illegal mesh leads and hearts and made two arrests.

Jake Williams of Escanaba was fined $25 and costs by Justice Albert Sanders in Stephenson, after he pleaded guilty to illegal smelt net mesh sizes. Alvin Williams of Menominee, arrested on a similar charge, has not appeared for arraignment.

Conservation officers said that smelt mesh must be 3½-inch mesh in the heart and lead of pound nets, while most of the commercial fishermen have been using 1½-inch hearts and leads. When conservation officers began to check nets, most commercial fishermen pulled pound nets.

The lead is the outer line of nets on a pound net which are set at 45 degree angles leading into a heart. From the heart the fish swim through a tunnel into the pot. The

LABOR DISPUTE AT PAPER MILL

Plant Idle As Grievance
Is Threshed Out

Employees of the Manistique Pulp & Paper company, with the exception of office help and members of its maintenance crews, have been idle since Monday morning pending the ironing out of a grievance between the company and the Paper Makers Local.

Representatives of the local would make no statement concerning the difficulty, other than insist that the work stoppage is not, in any sense, a strike. The grievance, they state, does not involve any action taken by the company, but instead, has to do with action the company may take.

The matter concerns the probable decrease in the number of oilers employed in the paper making process.

The Pulp and Sulphite Workers local, whose membership is made up of other workers about the plant not directly engaged in paper making, is not participating in the dispute, although the work stoppage has forced its members to cease work and await developments.

The Paper Makers local is an AFL affiliate.

In Saturday Session

A decree by Judge Herbert W. Runnels that land in Schoolcraft county subject to default because of tax delinquency up to the year 1946, is hereby forfeited to the state and subject to disposal in a sale to be conducted at the court house on May 3.

This action was taken by the judge during one of the recesses of the Manistique Tool vs. Heltman-Thompson case, last week.

Many cases listed as ready for trial were either dismissed or continued for trial in the next term of circuit court.

Disposition of the cases up for trial was as follows:

Arthur E. Gillispie vs. Joseph Hoholik, Ernest Hoholik and Ernest Bertrand, motion for security for costs, continued pending investigation.

Calvert Fire Insurance Co. vs. Adelard LaCroix, motion for security for costs, continued.

Carl Larson vs. John C. Kepsel, assumpsit. Plaintiff awarded judgment of $1,300.

Gerald Thomas vs. William F. Lundberg, motion for security of costs. Case continued.

Arvid Nelson vs. Lloyd Fragale, appeal from justice court. Case dismissed.

Paul Wehner vs. A. B. Abell, motion heard but no action taken.

No action was taken by the court in this term with reference to Commissioner of State Police vs. Schoolcraft county. This was a move to have the county jail closed. The building had been condemned by the state fire marshal, but the county supervisors contend that the building could be repaired and to a certain extent remodeled and thus conform with the state fire marshal's requirements. It is regarded as practically certain that this matter will be acted upon in the next term of circuit court.

J. E. GARRETT of Houston, Texas is a paleontologist, a member of the Standard Oil group which works to discover more oil. Last year we found enough new oil to increase our total reserves despite record-breaking production.

J. S. ASHWORTH, tool pusher on one of our drilling crews. These crews last year increased Standard Oil's facilities by bringing in 597 new oil wells. The cost of finding crude oil has gone up about 400 per cent in the last ten years.

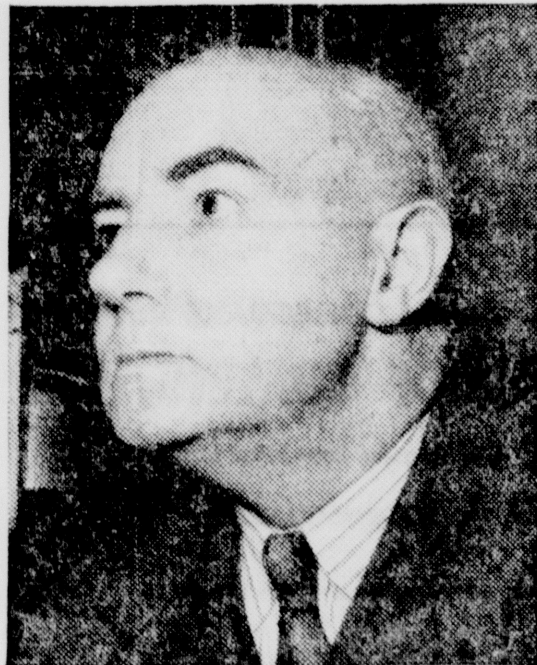

SVERRE N. AMUNDSEN is wheelman on a Standard Oil tanker, one of a large fleet of tankers, towboats and barges used to transport our petroleum products on the Great Lakes and the Mississippi, Ohio and Illinois rivers.

ADOLPH WOLFF, engineer at our Joliet, Illinois, pipeline pumping station. Many employees help keep crude oil and petroleum products flowing along our pipelines, to which 1,280 miles of new lines were added in 1948.

BOB BUEHLER works at Standard Oil's Sugar Creek, Missouri, refinery, where last year a new catalytic cracker was built. It can produce enough high-octane gasoline in a day to supply an average motorist for 1000 years.

LLEWELLYN HEARD, Ph.D., chemist in our Whiting, Indiana research laboratory. By discovering ways to get more and better products from crude oil, our research work has added extra millions of barrels of gasoline to your supply.

LAST YEAR, no one knew whether there would be oil enough to keep you warm through the winter, to keep your car running, to move America's trains, planes, production lines.

But now, as you know, you can get the oil you want. Here's the reason: hard work by America's oil companies—by thousands of drillers, transportation workers, refiners and marketers, backed by billions of dollars spent for equipment.

Standard Oil employees work as a team, from the oil well to the service station. That's why we were and are able to bring you more oil: because we work together.

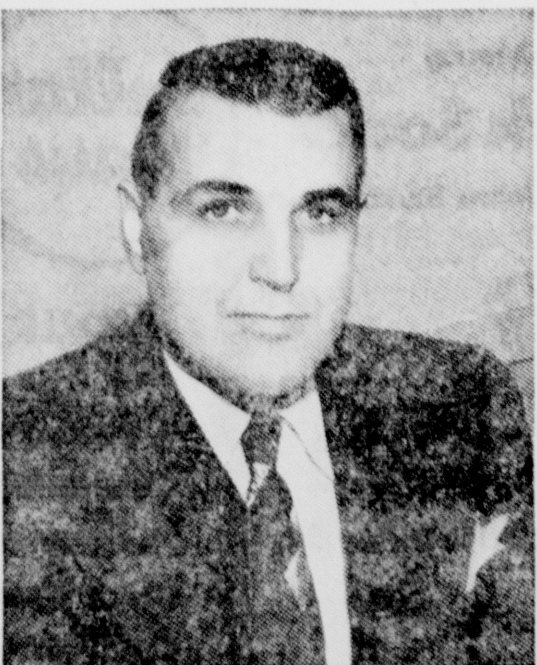

You get the petroleum products you want—and you get them most economically—because of the teamwork possible in an integrated organization. The 48,000 employees of this company and its subsidiary companies last year set output records for the third consecutive year, supplying even more than was demanded of us in the peak war years.

Money and men worked together to produce more oil, refine more oil, bring you more oil. Otherwise the oil shortage would have jumped from the headlines into your life.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (INDIANA)

WILFRED P. CAVANAUGH of Standard Oil's purchasing department is one of the men who buy the tools and equipment we need to keep you supplied. In the past three years we paid more than $650,000,000 for such equipment.

KARL F. JOHNSON, of Indianapolis, Indiana is one of the 37,000 owners of Standard Oil. The investment of these owners provides the tools and equipment with which jobs have been created and production increased.

RAYMOND OLCHESKE operates a service station on Como Boulevard in St. Paul, Minnesota. He is not a Standard employee, but one of the thousands of independent businessmen who sell our products to customers like you.

Rialto Bldg.FOUR-WEEK WAR
PLAN PROPOSEDRuark Doesn't Think It
Will Be That Easy

By ROBERT C. RUARK

New York — One of the outstanding angles in this rattle for funds by the armed forces is that any number of experts can play. You don't have to know much. All you need is a point of view, depending on whether you are four-square for Army, Navy or Air Force.

I gather, from the record, that a goodly number of the Air Forces, abetted by Rep. Clarence Cannon, the squire of the House Appropriations Committee, are 100 per cent for the four-week war. The atom-carrying bombers will fly long distances, sink Russia, dust off their hands and fly home to peace. The idea here is that the big apple will win it in a walk, but the details of delivery are a little sketchy.

Air Force would have us believe that with new refueling devices, it's all very simple. Maybe the big planes will fly too high for the little planes to get at them. Maybe the big planes will carry "parasite" fighters, buttoned to the belly of the mama planes, for use as cover when needed. Now that we have the atom and the enemy supposedly ain't got none, the eventual pulverization of Soviet war might is presented as more or less routine.

No Match for Fighters
I dunno. The arguers against sole dependence on atomic bombs and big bombers to lug them make considerable sense. Delivery of the present to Russian targets could be less simple than bombing Japan. By the time the B-29's really got going on the Nips, Japan would have been ravished and ruined by Marine and Navy fighter-bombers.

What I do know is that no bomber ever built was a match for a swarm of good fighters. During the first days of the war, a group of Navy fighters — unfettered in battle — took on 20 of the cream of the Japanese force and banged off 19 without losing, as I recall, a man.

And the fact is that today our fighters have hit such a peak of speed, maneuverability and firepower that they can hit just about anything the pilot can see, and shoot down anything they can hit. The delicate attunement of radar and rocket makes a truly fearsome thing of the modernized fighter. The Russians are supposed to have what we've got, and in superior quantity.

There has been the ambitious, not to say inaccurate, statement that our big bombers can maintain altitudes which exempt them from fighter persecution. This might be true on the trip over the arctic wastes, say—but the bombs will not be dropped on the arctic wastes. They are to be dropped on targets, deep in enemy territory, where the fighters mass to keep the big hen from reaching the nest with her deadly eggs.

Can Fly as High
I have a military expert's word that his fighters can fly just as high and four times as fast as any lumbering bomber with two tankloads of gas in her tummy. "Any pilot of mine who failed to shoot down an airborne scow whose tail assembly alone is three stories high would qualify for court-martial," he said. "Aerial gunnery has hit the point where

Rotarians See How
Van Horn Ties Flies

The history of fly tying from its earliest record down to the present was related to Gladstone Rotarians by Herbert VanHorn, proprietor of Van's Fly Co., at the weekly luncheon meeting of the club Monday noon.

"Van" said the earliest known fly was the Hippuras known to-day as the Royal Coachman which was used by the Macedonians about 200 B.C. The next major development was the designing of the Orange Fish Hawk by Berner in England in 1000 A. D. Then came the Professor in 1850 in England followed by Halford of England who came out with the Guyer Quill in 1900 A. D. America's major contribution was the Black Ghost, a streamer, designed in 1930.

As he related the history of the use of flies, the local manufacturer tied samples which he passed around for inspection along with similar flies which he had tied for regular distribution through factory channels.

Van Horn said he manufactures about 900 different flies and can tie practically everyone without reference to any of his numerous books on the subject.

In answer to a question he said that it was not possible to copyright a fly for the government is of the opinion that there is nothing new in the way of flies.

Leon Winkelman of Detroit and Richard Knop, Escanaba Country Club golf pro, were guests at the meeting.

Over 342,000 See
Detroit GM Show

Detroit, (AP)—General Motors said its "transportation unlimited" exhibit which closed Sunday night was attended by more than 342,000 Michigan and Detroit visitors.

This was 40,000 more than saw a similar show in New York last January. In addition, GM said, closing day established a new daily attendance record with 52,110 persons going through the show.

Exhibits included GM cars, trucks, buses, locomotives and styling, engineering and research displays.

very little depends on the man. He sees his target, radar sets the sights, and he touches the button. The whole war goes at once—Blooey! You don't shoot but once, and you don't come home with any ammunition in your guns."

As for retaliation, using rockets, the big bombers haven't been able to employ them successfully from their waist guns. They are effective only when launched in the same direction the plane is traveling. This leaves the big ships wide open to bias attack, and modern fighters are taught to go in at an angle, anyhow. There is more target to see and more time to spend with it.

As for the parasite fighter, which clings limpetlike to the mother ship—it is still an unproved dream. If the mothership gets knocked down, its lonesome chick has no place to roost when its gas runs low. It dies. If the big carrier gets jumped and destroyed before launching, it never flies. There are lots of holes in Rep. Cannon's theory of a four-week war, as we shall see tomorrow.

Educator Collector
Of Lumberjack Lore

A story of interest to Gladstone residents appears in Centralight, quarterly of the Central Michigan College of Education at Mount Pleasant, Mich., and concerns the hobby of Dr. E. C. Beck, head of the English department at Central. Dr. Beck for many years has collected lumberjack lore and on several occasions has brought his Lumberjack band to Gladstone for the national role.

The story is titled "Educator's Hobby is Lumberjack Lore, Tours U. S. and Canada as Lecturer." It was written by Gilbert O. Maiken, kneekt. A picture of Doc Beck illustrates the article and on the front page of the magazine is a large picture of "Doc" Beck getting a shave with an axe by Paul "Bunyan Criss, West Virginia, noted axeman who appeared here with Ed Meeks, sawyer, at the 1941 role.

The story:
I am a jolly shanty boy
Who loves to sing and dance
I wonder what my girls would say
If they could see my pants!

That's the first verse taken from "The Jolly Shanty Boy," which is one of 118 ballads appearing in Dr. E. C. Beck's latest book, "Lore of the Lumber Camps."

Dr. Beck, who has headed the department of English at Central Michigan College since 1928, has become one of the foremost authorities in the field of lumberjack literature. This is his third contribution in the field in the form of published material. The other two are "Sons of Michigan Lumberjacks" and contributions to the "Legends of Paul Bunyan."

"Lore of the Lumber Camps" came off the press during December, 1948. It is the result of some 18 years of collecting literature pertaining to the lumberjack. Acknowledgements to contributors if done personally would be a volume in itself. A considerable amount of the material has been gathered for him by his students in the states of Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Michigan. Another rich source for his material has been the lumberjacks he has met from Maine to California with additions by Canadian woodsmen.

The introduction to his book is a fine example of condensing Michigan Lumbering History. A highlight to the introduction is his keen use of individuals and their part in the creation of the literature.

The literature of the lumber camp, to quote Dr. Beck, grew up around the wood stove or the deacon seat from the time the jacks finished their talkless meal until bedtime, which was about nine o'clock. Singing and story telling as well as fiddling and dancing filled those hours. They had to "crawl into the bunks" early, for they rose at four in the morning or thereabouts.

Dr. Beck has divided his ballads into six categories: Life in the Lumbering Camps. The Lumberjack and the Lumberjill, Tragedies in the Woods, Bunk-house Ballads, Dialect Songs and Names in the Timberlands. His book is illustrated with episodes of Paul Bunyan's career by Gustave Hildebrand of Petoskey and log brands. The log brands bear interest to those who have had actual experience with logging and known the significance of branding.

Perhaps one of the first things a person interested in lumberjack tales will do is to turn to the illustrations depicting Paul Bunyan and his Blue Ox. Babe. The two were about as common to lumbering as the saw and axe. He ends his book with what he terms Tall Tales from Tall Timber, which are stories of the Paul Bunyan type.

Interesting is the story of one Ossawald Crumb who is credited with the classical remark, "Women know what kind of a house they want to live in, so let 'em build 'em." Another item that might interest some is Ossawald's recipe for a cocktail which follows: 1 coffee cup whiskey, 1 coffee cup ginger ale, 4 cup maple syrup, and a dash of lemon juice.

One of Dr. Beck's Ballads, "Louis Sands and Jim McGee," has been rearranged by Universal Pictures as the hit song for "River Lady."

The collection of lumberjack literature is one of "Doc's" primary hobbies and interests. An interesting side light to this is the fact that he never has been a lumberjack. However, his background is a folksy one, he having been a Montana cowpuncher, a Nebraska farm boy, a Harvard student, and a public school teacher.

Since he has taken up the hobby Dr. Beck has lectured on lumberjacks and their literature in some 20 states. He states that his hobby is not a profitable one; yet he has managed to tour the United States and most of Canada by lecturing. He has served as a master of ceremonies for lumberjack shows in Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Indianapolis, New York and Buffalo to mention a few of the larger cities.

The real old-time lumberjack is just about a person of the past according to Dr. Beck. However, there are a few still living and he cites Bill McBride, who is now 88 and living in Shepherd, Otis Township of Gratiot County, and George Hedquist, a former Upper Peninsula man now living in Detroit, as three old timers.

This collection by no means completes his work on lumber. Dr. Beck is continuing to do research in the field and to collect more literature pertaining to the American Lumberjack. He is interested and has started into the field of literature as it pertains to the Negro and his contribution to ballads and songs in the Southern Pine regions.

Dr. Beck is in demand at various colleges and clubs to lecture on literature of the lumber world. This summer he will teach courses in University of Wyoming.

Dr. Beck has a wholesome respect for the lumberjack and states that in his collecting and travels he and his family have met many woodsmen, but the ladies have never heard any blasphemy. The lumberjack respects ladies. A quotation which is used in the introduction to his book may serve well to be inserted here. In reference to the lumberman, he wrote: "They had their code and it was a chivalrous code. Rough in dress and speech and manners, gaining their livelihood by the hardest kind of manual labor, living, loving, and laughing crudely. No man could offend, insult, or molest a woman on the street; no man could even speak lightly of a woman of good reputation without suffering swift and violent justice at the hands of his fellows."

Dr. Beck needs no introduction to the Alumni of Central Michigan College or to the citizenry of the state. He is one of the college's more popular speakers, and he has wide acquaintance. Prior to coming to Central Dr. Beck taught in the Nebraska Public schools, the University of Nebraska, Fontana State Normal College, University of Florida and Peru, Nebraska, State Teachers College.

"The Lumberjack's Prayer," which was taken from his recent book is probably as fitting a way to come to a close as any.

All Star Game—Brooklyn, Tuesday, July 12

Phillies, Nats Surprise Winners In Openers; Full Schedule Today

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The major league baseball season opens with a full schedule today following surprising early victories by the Philadelphia Phillies and Washington Senators.

Thanks to Ken Heintzelman, a 33-year-old greybeard, and newcomer Clyde Vollmer, the Phillies and Senators stole a lap on the field yesterday in the only two games played.

Heintzelman shut out the favored Boston Braves, 4-0, spoiling the 1948 National league champions' pennant-raising ceremonies. Vollmer came through with a ninth-inning single that beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-2.

Both games on the first of the double opening programs were played under poor weather conditions. As a result, the crowds suffered. Only 9,195 paid to watch Billy Southworth's Braves hoist their 48 flag. Some 26,000 joined President Truman at Griffith stadium.

Washington, April 19 (AP)—President Truman finally helped pitch the Washington Senators to an opening-day American league baseball victory. Mr. Truman, tossing left-handed, threw out the traditional first ball yesterday. The President had predicted in advance the score would be Washington 5, the Athletics 4. He thus virtually called the shot.

Chill, damp weather threatens to slice today's crowds. Cincinnati, sold out, since Christmas as usual for its date with St. Louis Cardinals, won't be hurt. But the others may.

Brooklyn hopes to crack its home opening record of 31,648 with the New York Giants as an attraction. The weather man is not optimistic.

Chicago may turn out 30,000 to see if Rip Sewell, winner of nine opening games, can pitch Pittsburgh to a victory over the Cubs. Sewell, better than ever at 40, is opposed by another "kid", 39-year-old Dutch Leonard.

The Phillies and Braves, who beat the gun yesterday, may top their opening day mark in a patriots' day doubleheader.

Detroit expects to draw 50,000 to see Hal Newhouser try to tame the feeble Chicago White Sox. The New York Yankees expect about 40,000 for their Yankee stadium opener against Washington.

The world champion Cleveland Indians are due to play in the comparative solitude of Sportsman's Park against the St. Louis Browns with 15,000 or less in the stands. Connie Mack counts on 25,000 at Shibe Park for the A's first home start against the powerful Boston Red Sox.

The Athletics' Dick Fowler apparently had victory No. 1 all sewed up with a 2-1 lead going to the last of the ninth at Washington. Successive pinch doubles by Sherry Robertson and Ed Stewart tied the score. After Fowler loaded the bases, Vollmer came through with his game-winning single to left.

The hit by Vollmer made President Truman look good as a baseball expert for he had predicted a Washington win by a 5-4 score. The score was off but he had the winner. Last year he was right on the Yankees to beat the Senators.

Heintzelman did a remarkable job on the Braves, mowing down the champs with five hits. Johnny Sain was wild in the first walking two men with the bases loaded to give Eddie Sawyer's alert Phillies all the runs they needed.

HARMON BEST MAN

Beverly Hills, Calif., April 19 (AP)—Tom Harmon, Michigan football great, Monday was best man at the wedding of Lorraine Hilda Bendix, 19, and Monroe Jack Sadow, also 19. The bride is the daughter of screen actor William Bendix.

Lon Warneke Back As 'Ump'

Boston, April 19 (AP)—Although he now wears a blue suit with long trousers he's the same Lon Warneke.

The "Arkansas Humming Bird" is back in the National league as an umpire.

"Sure I feel like a rookie just breaking in but a rookie who's a little surer than I was in 1931 my first full year with the Cubs."

"And I'm happy to be back in the majors, yes sir, I'm as happy as that kid with the new toy." Warneke, who umpired the last three years in the Triple-A Pacific Coast circuit is assigned to work with the veteran arbiters Bill Stewart and Jocko Conlan.

Conlan was the plate umpire on a hot August 30 in 1941 when Warneke pitched his no hitter for the St. Louis Cardinals, in Cincinnati, shutting out the Reds 2-0.

"An easy game to call, too," said Conlan.

Billy Southworth, now managing the Boston Braves, was the Cards' manager that day.

"Lonnie got better as the game went on," Southworth remembered. "Mike (Mike Gonzales, then a St. Louis coach) wasn't too sure after warming him up. He no got good fast one, skip, Mike told me. Warneke came from Mt. Ida, Ark., a quiet place where there isn't much going on. He was one of 10 children raised on a farm in that Ozark region. He's happy about baseball for the fine living he can get out of it for his wife and two children, a boy, Charles, 12 and a daughter, Lonnie Patricia, 11.

Always a well liked, quiet player, Warneke is sure he'll get along all right in the majors again.

Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phillies' ace young pitcher, was more highly regarded as a basketball player than a diamond star during the early stages of his collegiate career at Michigan State. In 1946-47 he was voted the most valuable college court star in Michigan by newsmen and athletic officials and the next year captained his team.

Tackle Hal Vogler, Michigan State's 1949 football captain, did it the hard way. He was an end on the jayvee team in his first year of college competition and worked his way up from there.

Lynn Chandnois, Michigan State's All-America candidate at right halfback, admits he liked basketball better than football as a high school student at Flint, court career in mind. He was All-State on the hardwood.

Michigan State has finished no worse than third in team standings in National Collegiate boxing tournaments since 1943 and has won four individual championships in that period.

ESCANABA DAILY PRESS SPORTS

"It Seems To Me"

BY JIM WARD

Major league baseball is embarked on its annual six-month binge, but it already has more headaches and bruises than a punch-drunk fighter. Never before has organized baseball started a season with more trouble on its hands.

Centered around challenges to its very closely-guarded reserve clause, which has given baseball owners protection over their big businesses do not have, baseball is sweating out court suits introduced by Max Lanier, Fred Martin and Danny Gardella.

The Browns and Cardinals are squabbling in St. Louis over use of Sportsman's Park, and if the Browns win their $222,500 damage suit, filed yesterday, the Cards won't have a place to play.

And without a doubt there is dissension in the ranks of the Boston Braves, allegedly because Manager Billy Southworth took most credit for winning the National league championship last year and thus softened player salary demands this spring.

Southworth and his players strongly deny the rift, of course, but competent Boston writers report it exists.

The great Joe DiMaggio and other stars have come up with varied ailments that make you wonder whether the national spectators' pastime depends on the success of a surgeon's operation on a pitcher's elbow or a hitter's heel.

Reading training reports emanating from southern training camps, you sort of get the idea that major league championships would go to the two teams that had the nine most able-bodied men left standing in the stretch drive.

Branch Rickey's branding of legal action against organized baseball as a Communist move didn't help the old game any either. It was a ridiculous and stupid thing to say.

Happy Chandler's handling of the Mexican case left much to be desired. Many close baseball observers feel the five-year suspension he slapped on Mickey Owen, Lanier, Martin, Gardella and others who jumped at the sight of Pasquale's pesos is far too stiff.

A three-year suspension or even a one-year suspension with perhaps a probationary period would have accomplished the same thing. As commissioner, he brought this trouble on himself.

Baseball's a swell game, but sometimes you wonder about the fellows who run it.

The President Speaks.....

—AMERICAN—
By WILLIAM HARRIDGE
(President of the American League)

Chicago, April 19 (AP)—The American league, I am confident, will enjoy another banner year this 1949 season, one which should equal and possibly surpass the record-breaking one of 1948.

Given two "breaks" of the game, the league stands an excellent chance of matching the 1948 all-time major league attendance mark of 11,150,099 fans. One of those "breaks" would come from the weatherman, who last year co-operated with the finest all-season weather the league ever has experienced. The second would be in the form of a pennant battle similar to that which sent last year's flag fight into a playoff between Cleveland and Boston, climaxing the closest championship race the circuit ever has seen.

Sustained interest by the fans last season came from the pennant battle waged to the final month by Cleveland, Boston, New York and Philadelphia. There is no reason to believe that those four clubs will not have as closely matched this year, with possibly a fifth team edging into the first division scramble.

Fan interest during the spring training season always is a good sign, and exhibition games in Florida and in the west were exceptionally well attended, with games in some sections attracting all-time record crowds. In addition, every one of our clubs reports excellent advance seat sales.

—NATIONAL—
By FORD C. FRICK
President National League

New York, April 19 (AP)—At a gathering of baseball writers the other day, one of these gentlemen started quite a discussion by saying that he was picking a certain team to win the pennant in the National league.

There were about a dozen writers assembled at the time and, before the boys called it a day, not more than two had agreed on any one team to win the flag in our league. I was impressed with the arguments each advanced in making his selection. When each had had his say, they turned to me and asked me about my prediction.

These writers have been friends of mine for years and they have known that it has not been my policy to make a prediction on the outcome of a pennant race. But this time I stopped them short when I said that I would make one.

While I did not pick a winner nor predict just how the teams would finish in any order, I told these writers that I would be very much surprised if, when the championship season ended, there was a difference of more than a dozen games between the pennant winning team and the club that finished seventh.

We have a well balanced league. Every one of our clubs has made improvements. Every team is confident as it prepares to launch the season—the seventy-fourth for the league. I have talked to all the managers and there isn't one who doesn't feel that his team has a chance.

Today a year ago—Gerard Cote of Canada won the Boston marathon in two hours, 31 minutes, two seconds.

Three years ago—New York Yankees defeated Washington, 7-6, before an opening day crowd of 55,628 at Yankee stadium.

Ten years ago—Ellison Brown of Alton, R. I., won the Boston Marathon in two hours, 28 minutes 51.8 seconds.

Detroit, April 19 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers led with their ace, Southpaw Hal Newhouser, in their American league opener against the Chicago White Sox today.

The weatherman offered the estimated 50,000 fans a partly cloudy afternoon with a 48 degree temperature.

Both teams played their season opener under new managers—(Red) Rolfe for the Tigers and Jack Onslow for the White Sox.

Hal Newhouser former White Sox manager, made his debut as a Detroit coach.

Onslow was undecided whether to start Al Gettel (8-11) or Randy Gumpert (3-6), both right-handers.

For the tall, slender Newhouser it marked the fifth consecutive year that he was called on to pitch the Tiger opener. Newhouser (21-12) was the only American league pitcher to win more than 20 games last season.

Detroit, which finished fifth last year, is rated in many quarters as having little chance to wind up better than four or fifth this season.

But a lot of Tiger fans headed for Briggs Stadium today hopeful that the Tigers would come up with a couple of consistent long ball hitters to strengthen the club and put it right up into the pennant fight.

Probable lineups:

White Sox: Berry 2b, Baker 3b, Philley cf, Appling ss, Zernial if, Seever rf, Michaels 2b, Tipton c, Souchock 1b, Gumpert p. Newhouser p. Umpires: Hubbard, Perry and Paparella. Game time: 3 p. m.

Buddies Back Work Of Doolittle Raider

Purses Opened To Help Japanese Raider

Galveston, Tex., April 19 (AP)—One of the daring Tokyo raiders, now a missionary in Japan, soon will receive a spontaneous contribution from his buddies to help him in his work among the Japanese.

Lt. Gen. Jimmie Doolittle's airmen, who made the first bombing attack on Japan, opened their purses to help Rev. Jacob Deshazer, Deshazer was a bombardier on one of the B-25's participating in the raid.

An undisclosed amount of cash was collected at the raiders' fourth annual convention yesterday for the missionary.

Deshazer, now at Osaka, Japan, wrote to the assembled fliers: "We can influence more Japanese by opening the doors of Christian churches than by opening bomb bay doors."

The missionary was one of the unlucky ones following the raid. He was captured in China and spent 34 months in solitary confinement in a Japanese prison camp.

He was given a bible by a Japanese guard.

Deshazer said, "I read it and the Lord showed me the way to become a Christian. I did not know before. I decided to love my fellow man and to return good for evil. All hatred was taken from me."

After liberation he returned to Oregon, his home state. He began studying for the ministry.

Rev. Deshazer returned to Tokyo last Dec. 28 as a missionary of the Free Methodist church in Japan. He preached his first sermon Jan. 1.

Ludington Harbor Fishermen Drown; One Body Recovered

Ludington, Mich., April 19 (AP)—Coastguard crews early today recovered the body of Harold J. Hansen, jr., 20, from the Ludington harbor basin after Hansen and a companion had been reported missing on a fishing trip Monday evening.

Dragging was continued for the body of Irvin Yeck, jr., 21, a Ludington postal employee.

The 12-foot rowboat in which the two youths had set out last night was found capsized after families of the pair had reported them missing.

Young Hansen, a student at Michigan State college, was an experienced swimmer and lifeguard but Coast Guardsmen said temperature of the water last night would have made swimming difficult.

CIRCUS LION STOLEN

European Recovery Measure Signed By President Truman

Washington, April 19 (AP)—President Truman today signed the $5,580,000,000 European Recovery authorization bill.

Mr. Truman used eight pens in the signing, giving one to each of the seven witnesses and keeping one for Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) who was unable to be present for the White House ceremony.

Present for the signing in Mr. Truman's oval room office were Secretary of State Acheson, Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee; Chairman Kee (D-WVA) of the House Foreign Affairs committee; ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, roving ECA Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Deputy Administrators William C. Foster and Howard K. Bruce.

The legislation makes $1,000,000,000 immediately to the ECA from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

These funds will keep aid flowing to western Europe until Congress votes additional cash.

Milwaukeean Taken For Bear, Shot Dead

Milwaukee, April 19 (AP)—A Milwaukee man was shot and killed today by a neighbor who told police he thought the victim was a bear.

The dead man is Lawrence E. Griffith, 58.

Capt. William Hannon of the sheriff's department said John Drews, 57, admitted firing 11 shots from a .22 caliber rifle. John Drews lives only a few doors from the Griffith home in the 5000 block on N. 54th street.

Hannon quoted Drews as telling sheriff's deputies:

"I did it, take me in. I thought it was a bear."

A warrant has not been issued and Hannon said he could not say what charge would be preferred.

Sister Poisoned, Buried In Hoggpen; Farmer Confesses

Walterboro, S. C., April 19 (AP)—A farmer who told police he poisoned his aged sister and buried her — possibly alive — in a hog pen will be tried in June for murder.

Solicitor Randolph Murdaugh said yesterday he would ask a grand jury to indict Wyman Hiott, 60, for killing 80-year-old Mrs. Carrie Hiott Carter "by starvation, poisoning or burying alive."

Murdaugh formally charged the farmer after he reported Hiott had admitted that he poisoned his sister "because she had messed up her bed so many times."

The solicitor quoted Hiott as saying he had placed poison in his sister's coffee April 5. The next day, Murdaugh said, Hiott told him he dug a grave for her near a stable.

"I then went back  to her bedroom, picked her up and placed her in the grave, covering her with blankets, then paper, then dirt. At that time she was breathing a little," Murdaugh said Hiott reported.

Hiott was arrested April 8, the day his sister's body was found in the barnyard grave behind their rural home.

Gov. Dewey to Take Holiday In Europe; Senate Seat Looms

Albany, N. Y., April 19 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will sail for Europe May 5 amid political speculation he has an eye on a U. S. Senate seat.

"This is not a political trip in any sense of the word," Dewey told reporters last night in announcing his six-week visit to most of the nations of western Europe.

He described the trip as "a holiday and much-needed rest." But it was understood he would confer with political leaders in most countries he visits.

The twice-defeated Republican presidential nominee will be accompanied by Mrs. Dewey and his secretary, Paul E. Lockwood.

There have been rumors that Dewey is interested in the Senate seat of Robert F. Wagner, New York Democrat, whose fourth term expires Dec. 31, 1950. Dewey's second term as governor expires the same time.

Court Test Ahead For Conservation Auto Search Case

Lansing, April 19 (AP)—A court test loomed today for the controversial conservation department "search and seizure" law.

The state supreme court ordered Municipal Judge Paul C. Younger to show cause why he should not issue a warrant against a Lansing man accused of violating the law.

Judge Younger had refused to issue a warrant for the arrest of Marshall J. Keeler of Lansing, sought under the search and seizure law by a conservation officer.

The judge was ordered to show cause why he should not issue the warrant, with a supreme court hearing date set for May 17.

The conservation officer claimed Keeler refused to allow him to search his car and examine his hunting and fishing gear. The officer said Keeler's hunting and fishing licenses were in order and were offered for inspection but said Keeler refused to permit further examination of his car and equipment.

Judge Younger refused the warrant on the grounds that the law had never been tested in a high court.

First Great Lakes Ironclad Warship Offered For Scrap

Erie, Pa., April 19 (AP)—The U. S. S. Michigan, first American ironclad to sail the Great Lakes, will be broken up and sold for scrap.

William B. Washabaugh, attorney for the foundation for the U. S. S. Michigan, Monday asked for bids for dismantling the old war vessel.

The mainmast and bowsprit of the historic man-o-war will be preserved, he said.

The bowsprit will become part of a memorial near the craft's present berth in Misery Bay, Peninsula State Park.

The mainmast will be turned over to a "Save The Michigan" committee which was unsuccessful in efforts to raise a $300,000 fund to restore the old vessel.

Capt. Leon J. Jacobi, commander of the Michigan naval force, who heads the committee, said he would ask the City of Detroit for authorization to erect the mainmast in Gabriel Richard Park along the Detroit waterfront.

Tragedy Fund Aids Families of 4 Dead In Easter Gunfight

Pullman, Wash., April 19 (AP)—Families of four men killed in a gunfight will share in an "Easter Tragedy Fund."

The Pullman and Colfax Chambers of Commerce set up the fund yesterday.

Five men were killed in the gunfight.

George McIntyre, a 28-year-old electrical appliance dealer, went "berserk" when a policeman attempted to arrest him here for assault Easter Sunday. He shot and killed the officer and later killed three members of a sheriff's posse that went after him. McIntyre was shot dead in the fight.

J. D. Lewis, the temporary fund chairman, said the question of whether to include McIntyre's widow and two children will be decided later.

Husband Slays Wife In Lobby Of Hotel, Then Kills Himself

Olympia, Wash., April 19 (AP)—A 47-year-old man fatally shot his 31-year-old wife in a downtown hotel lobby last night, Coroner Van R. Hinkle said, then killed himself.

Hinkle said the shooting was the result of a triangle involving the couple and a 23-year-old Fort Lewis soldier.

The few bystanders in the lobby ducked during the fusillade of shots. None of them was injured. The shooting took place in the Olympian, one of the city's leading hotels.

Hinkle identified the dead man as Harold N. Cooke, a steamfitter, of Tacoma, Wash., and his wife as Gladys Cooke.
